SAFE ACT IN ACTION
Laws can seem abstract. Here are some ways the SAFE Act would work on the ground in your neighborhood.

AT HOME
Guns must be safely stored with a locking device from any household member who has been convicted of a felony or domestic violence crime, has been involuntarily committed into mental-health treatment, or is currently under a restraining order. Unsafe storage of assault weapons is a misdemeanor.

IN A THERAPIST’S OFFICE
Any therapist who believes a mental health patient made a credible threat of harming others has to report it to a mental health director, who then has to report serious threats to the state Department of Criminal Justice Services. A patient’s gun could be taken from him or her.

AT STORES THAT SELL AMMUNITION
Ammunition dealers are required to do background checks, like those for gun buyers, and report all sales to the state. Ammunition background checks will begin January 15, 2014.

ABOUT THE PROJECT
Students in College Now’s Research Methods Class at City College of Technology worked with the Center for Urban Pedagogy to take a complicated law, New York’s new SAFE Act, and try to understand what it really means.

THE NY SAFE ACT

After the tragedy at Newtown, everyone looked for ways to prevent gun violence. One way was by making laws.

In 2013, a law called the New York Secure Ammunition and Firearms Enforcement Act (NY SAFE Act) was passed by New York State’s Legislature. To figure out what this complicated law really means, we interviewed Robert Feldstein, who works on criminal justice policy in Mayor Michael Bloomberg’s office.

Here are the major points of the new NY SAFE Act and what they mean:

- 7 rounds
- 10 rounds

Magazines (where ammunition is stored in a gun) may only contain up to 7 rounds regardless of how many bullets it can store, unless you are at a firing range or competition, in which case you may load your magazine to its full capacity.

- Ammunition dealers are required to do background checks (see ON BACKGROUND CHECKS below) similar to those for gun buyers. Dealers are required to report all sales, including amounts, to the state.

- Stolen guns are required to be reported within 24 hours. Failure to report can result in a misdemeanor.

- Sentences for gun crimes are now longer. Taking a gun on school property is now a felony, not a misdemeanor. (Felonies are more severe crimes than misdemeanors, and have higher penalties, like jail time instead of a fine).

- The online sale of assault weapons (see WHAT’S AN ASSAULT WEAPON ANYWAY? below) is banned. Internet sales of ammunition are allowed, but the ammunition will have to be shipped to a licensed dealer in New York State for pickup.

- Law enforcement officials can pre-emptively seize a person’s firearms without a warrant if they have probable cause to believe the person may be mentally unstable or intends to use the weapons to commit a crime.

- Pistol Permit holders or owners of registered assault weapons must have them renewed at least every five years.

ON BACKGROUND CHECKS

“People don’t understand what a background check is. They think: ‘I’m going to have to get fingerprinted, and interviewed, you’re going to call places I used to live.’ But in this context, it’s a 90 second process. They call, you give your name, your date of birth, your address, social. It runs in the computer, checks to see if you’re on any lists. People need to know it’s a really quick, simple process.”

WHAT’S AN ASSAULT WEAPON ANYWAY?

“It’s really hard to define, but there are basic rules. It’s a semi-automatic, which means every time you fire there’s a new bullet. So it fires off as quick as you can pull the trigger. It’s got a removable clip...The clip is the piece of metal inside that holds the bullets in place...And then it has combat features: things they have added to guns to make them easier to use in combat situations.”
